What is the WMC Weekly Gather?

Writing can be lonely. This new event, a virtual write-in and guided workspace, is an opportunity for WMC members to add consistency and community to their writing practice.

Ericka Lutz, author, editor, and writing teacher, will lead timed writing sessions with optional prompts.

- Work on your book
- Start a poem
- Finish that essay
- Dabble in the prompts
- Let your creativity flow

We'll often check in briefly, but mostly we'll WRITE.

How it Works

Every Thursday from 9 to 11am, beginning April 16th, you're invited to join Ericka and other WMC members in the Zoom room for guided (muted) writing sessions.

Ericka provides:

The Zoom room, moderation and facilitation, timed writing sessions, and (optional) writing prompts.

You'll need:

A computer with Internet access and a camera, your choice of writing materials, a quiet space, an uninterrupted two hours, and tea, coffee, snacks.

You'll get:

So much writing done. In community. With support.

Q: Can I just drop in for an hour? Say at 9:45?

A: No late joining, please. Ericka will open the Zoom room at 8:55 am. Once we begin, she'll lock the room, so we won't be disrupted. (This is weekly session, so if you're too late... come by next week!)

Q: Do I need to commit to all of the sessions?

A: NO! No commitment needed. Join when you like, skip it when it doesn't work for you.

Q: What does it cost?

A: This virtual gathering is FREE!

Q: How do I join this amazing activity?

A: Ready to rumble? You'll need to get on the mailing list for this activity. (We don't sell or share our mailing list with anyone.) Send a brief note and any questions to ericka.lutz@gmail.com, subject line: WMC Weekly Gather. She'll send you the zoom link, and communicate occasionally with updates, reminders, and so on.
